

NOMINATIONS OPEN TO COUNCIL POSTS

DEADLINE NOV. 21

Nominees Must Be Students of Junior Year

ALL FACULTIES TO VOTE

Nominations to Be Signed by at Least Ten Students

Nominations are open for Faculty Representatives to the Students' Executive Council. Nominees must be students of the Junior Year of the Faculties of Arts and Science, Engineering, Medicine, Law, Dentistry, School of Commerce and The Royal Victoria College.

All nominations must be in writing and signed by at least ten undergraduate students from the faculty which the nominee represents. G. H. Fletcher, secretary of the Students' Executive Council has announced that all nominations must be in the hands of the Secretary of the Students' Society by 2.30 p.m. Thursday, November 21st.

The Students' Society of McGill University is the organization of all students who pay the universal fee for student activities. This Society is in complete control of all extra-curricular activities, and has two major executives, the Athletics Board and the Students' Executive Council. The Council is the intermediary between the university and the Students' Society. Eight faculty representatives, one from each faculty and one from R.V.C. will be elected. The Elections will be held Tuesday, December 3, and the officers elected will take office January 1st, 1941.

SPEAKER STRESSES RACIAL EQUALITY

Speaking at People's Forum Mr. Silcox Outlines Reasons for War

Mr. C. E. Silcox, director of the Canadian Conference of Christians and Jews, spoke last night at the People's Forum on "The Race Problem in its Present Aspects" saying that European Youth was up against an economic barrier that is missing in America. Here a person can go from one economic class to another on a basis of merit but finally the youth in Europe feels that it has reached a blind alley. He stated that there are two reasons why the peace after the last war did not endure: first, in

ARTS DEBATERS BEGIN SCHEDULE

First Debates Take Place on Tuesday and Wednesday

The Judge Will Be Mr. C. Currie of the Department of Philosophy

The Arts Debating Society will begin its debating schedule this week when two debates will be held, the first on Tuesday, November 12, and the second on Wednesday, November 13.

The first debate, "Resolved that modern advertising is conducive to intelligent buying", will take place at 3 p.m. on Tuesday in Room 12 of the Arts Building. The affirmative will be upheld by Steward Bross, R. M. MacIntosh, and Bill Noble; while the negative will be upheld by E. K. Hugessen, B. Applebaum, and J. Villiers.

The second debate of the series, to be held in Room 12 of the Arts Building on Wednesday at 4 p.m., will be on the topic: "Resolved that formal written examinations are the most satisfactory guides for promotion in Universities and high schools". The affirmative will be argued by A. G. Estakis, D. A. Brewerton, and A. Glassman; while the negative will be taken by H. K. Nathanan, H. Bryans, and B. Archambault.

All speeches will be six minutes long, except that the first speaker of the affirmative and the last speaker of the negative will be given three minutes extra for rebuttal.

These two debates will be judged by Mr. C. Currie of the Philosophy Department.

'WILL OF GOD' IS TOPIC AT I.V.C.F.

Next Meeting to Be Held Tomorrow in the McGill Union

The next meeting of the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship will be in the form of a luncheon to take place tomorrow at 1.00 p.m. in the McGill Union. Mr. Gordon Bennett, a prominent business man from Calgary, will be the guest speaker.

At a meeting of the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship held Saturday evening Bill Weaver Ph.D. '41 spoke on the subject "The Will of God."

He considered his subject from two points of view: the general, in which he stated that the "Will of God" was that everyone should repent, that the purpose of everyone should be to come to a knowledge of God, who is typified in Jesus Christ; and the particular, in which he said that Christians should recover God in his particular sphere. After the address an informal discussion followed and refreshments were served.

SOLE CONSCIENTIOUS OBJECTOR SUSPENDED

The sole conscientious objector to the compulsory military training, Gordon K. Stewart, of the Faculty of Arts, was suspended yesterday from the University. Stewart, who is nineteen, said that compulsory military training was against his religious principles. The case was taken up by a special military committee of the University Senate. Since Stewart is not of military age, the case is being handled by the University authorities and not by the Government.

At the University of Toronto, ten students have refused to take part in military training, giving as their reason religious principles. They have been dealt with by a military tribunal outside the University.

VANITY OF MEN IS TOPIC OF DEBATE

Co-eds and Plumbers to Hold Annual Debate on November 18

"Resolved that men are more vain than women" will be the subject of debate between co-eds and engineers on November 18. The R.V.C. representatives, Joan Storey and Margaret Currie will uphold the affirmative, while engineers Bob Carter and Bill MacNaughton will defend the members of the stronger sex.

Last year's debate, "Resolved that men are more influenced by women than by money", was won by co-eds Frances Cohen and Ivy Lawrence, who defeated engineer's Bill MacNaughton and Hunley Duff. In spite of the arguments put forth by the engineers, the co-eds proved the truth of the old adage which states the uselessness of arguing against a woman.

This year's debate will be held in the form of a wager, the losers taking the winners out to dinner. It will be held in the engineering building, but the room and hour have not yet been decided on. They will be announced at a later date.

Film Society Elects James as Vice-Pres.

Principal James was elected Honorary Vice-President of the Montreal branch of the National Film Society at its organization meeting last Tuesday evening. The Society expects to give between eight and ten performances during the following season, to be held at the Galleries of the Art Association of Montreal, the first being on November 15th at 8.30 p.m. It does not intend to compete with the movie houses, but will show pictures that would not otherwise be seen.

COMING DEBATE TOPIC CHOSEN

Commerce Argues Specialization in Education

Dr. Beach, Mr. Vineberg Will Judge Sophomores in Contest

The Commerce Debating Society will open its season on Friday, November 15th, when eight sophomores will consider the resolution, "Resolved that a High School education giving the fundamental principles of knowledge without option of subjects is more beneficial to the student than one that specializes in one group of subjects at the expense of the other." The contest is scheduled to start at 4.30 p.m. in the Arts Building.

The chairman of the meeting will open the debate by upholding the side of the resolution which the first contestant will oppose. While the first contestant speaks the second speaker will listen in order to take up the forger's arguments. Then the third debater will be called in to listen to the second debater, and so on. Each speaker will be allowed to speak for seven minutes, the first time signal being given after five minutes.

Have Judges.

Dr. E. F. Beach, acting director of the School of Commerce, and Mr. P. Vineberg, lecturer in Economics and Political Science, have consented to act as judges of the debates. All second year contestants are asked to communicate with the executive of the Commerce Debating Society regarding precise time arrangements, since not all contestants have to be present at 4.30.

The room of the Arts Building where the contest is to be held, along with the date of the debates of the rest of the year of the Commerce Faculty are to be announced later.

DOUGLAS HALL HOLDS OFFICERS' ELECTIONS

Douglas Hall residents held their elections last night for the officers of the Residents' Council. The elected are:

President: John Gilbert (acclamation)
Secretary-treasurer: Ian Ross.
Social-convenor: Walter Percival (acclamation).

The Residents' Council will also include four other members to be elected next week. Previous to this year, election of all officers was held on the same day, but in the new constitution, voted unanimously at the general meeting of all residents last week, provision was made to hold the election of the four other members of the council at a later date. This will permit unsuccessful contestants to the senior charges, to be candidates again for the other positions.

U.B.C. ACTS TO AID RED CROSS

U.B.C. Students Endorse 'Self-Denial' Campaign

All Returnable Caution Money Signed Over to Red Cross

Vancouver, B. C., November 8, 1940.—(C.U.P.)—Filled with a desire to help the Canadian Red Cross in its $5,000,000 War Chest Drive Number Two, University of B.C. students today endorsed the Red Cross Campaign of their Students' Council at the first special Alma Mater Society meeting of the year today noon. Over 1500 students, who packed the University Auditorium for the most hectic AMS meeting since the suspension of the CSA, signed away all their returnable caution money to start the campaign rolling. By this method an estimated $2,000 has been earmarked for the first chapter in UBC's 1940-1941 Red Cross Campaign.

Each year the student is assessed five dollars 'caution' money to cover breakages in laboratories and damages due to interfaculty riots and skirmishes. The balance, if any, is returned at the end of the year. In past years, however, student campaigns have been financed by the waiving of this caution money balance. Last year over 800 students signed an estimated $1600 to the Canadian Red Cross by this method.

Self-Denial Plans.

In addition to this 'precaution money' as it is called, the students plan a self-denial day, when all student will donate a nickel or a dime to the Red Cross instead of buying a coke or a package of cigarettes. Interfaculty, interfraternity, interclub rivalry is forecast to see which can deny the most. A barometer will probably be kept to indicate the daily donations of each group.

A Mile of Dimes, descendant of UBC's original mile of nickels campaign, which helped to build the Brock Hall, is also planned by the coeds.

Mixers, sponsored by the undergraduate societies on the campus, are scheduled to take place in the Brock Hall intermittently throughout the season.

The spirit of 'insisting on helping the local Red Cross to achieve a $600,000 objective in Greater Vancouver compelled the students to renounce the setting of any specific objective in their campaign. A proposed objective of $2,500 was turned down without hesitation as students yelled "The Sky is the limit."

DR. ROSCOE SHOWS VALUE OF TRAINING

"Women students at McGill should consider it a privilege to be able to train under the present scheme for war service," said Dr. Roscoe, warden of R.V.C., in an interview yesterday. A tremendous chance is being offered to the women to be of service to the community," she said. Dr. Roscoe stated that about 600 women were enrolled in the classes, which were to consist of two hours of physical drill and two hours of first-aid. Later, home-nursing and instruction in public health will be included.

She emphasized how necessary it was for women to be able to take charge in any emergency, and to have a working knowledge of the care of the injured. The physical training was intended to develop all reserves to enable one to work longer and harder.

PLUMBERS PLAN TO BUY BONDS

Undergrads Decide to Purchase $100 War Bond

Newly-Elected Secretary and Treasurer Take Over Posts

The Engineering Undergraduate Society has set a precedent on the Campus by donating a sum of $100 for the purchase of War Bonds. The Society has a surplus that has been accumulating through the years and it was decided on Saturday at the first meeting of the Undergrads to purchase the bonds.

Dave Haviland and Norm Retalick, newly elected to the posts of Treasurer and Secretary respectively, took over their posts for the first time in the official capacity. The election of these officers was necessitated by the death of Sam Hutchinson, last year's secretary and the fact that J. Stewart, treasurer, has left the University.

At the outset of the meeting, it was decided to send a letter of condolence from the whole Undergraduate body to Mrs. Hutchinson on the death of her son.

Budget.

The main item for discussion was the approval of the budget. As there was some difference of opinion as to whether the executive should be granted the sum of $125 for trips and miscellaneous expenses, the undergraduates came (Continued on Page Four)

S.C.M. COMMENCES FINANCIAL DRIVE

Executive Fixes Goal of $525 for This Year's Activities

The S.C.M. student and staff supporters are conducting a campaign this week, November 12 to 20, to raise $525. This organization is self-supporting and charges no fees. The regular activities pay for themselves and this money pays for the maintenance of offices and staff, for the engaging of speakers, and for the providing of leadership for discussion groups.

The Painting Group will hold its first meeting today at 8 p.m. in Strathcona Hall on the second floor in Room B. A new method will be begun, that introduced by Mr. F. Brandtner, a Montreal artist, who has worked with the Psychopathic Department of the Children's Memorial Hospital. The group is for those who have never painted before and would like to try. The new method is from memory, creative, with little emphasis laid on light and shade or space. Freedom and originality are the keynote.

"In time of national crisis," stated Dorothy Fleming, McGill S.C.M. secretary, "students need to clarify and affirm their basis for deciding and taking action; not to run away in a panic from a situation which seems too terrible to face. Through its program the S.C.M. maintains a fellowship of students who seek to know and apply Christian principles to the world today."

2,300 MEN PARTICIPATE

District Officer Commanding Takes Salute

CROWDS LINE ROUTE

Services Held in Both St. James United and Christ Church Cathedral

By R. A. S.

Nearly 2300 members of the McGill C.O.T.C. and the Reserve Training Battalion took part in Sunday's church parade the Contingent's first big show of the year, and gave the thousands who lined the route a convincing demonstration of soldierly spirit and bearing developed during their few weeks of training.

The climax of the parade took place when the Contingent paraded west on Sherbrooke, after attending service in St. James United Church and Christ Church Cathedral, and past the reviewing stand in front of the Art Gallery where the salute was taken by Brig.-General E. de B. Panet, C.M.G., D.S.O., V.D., officer commanding Military District Number 4.

2,300 Men Parade

The turnout of approximately 2,300 men was, in the words of Col. A. A. Magee, honorary colonel of the C.O.T.C. and executive assistant to the Minister of National Defence, the largest number of officers and students in training in the history of McGill, larger than at any time during the World War. Two bands were in attendance, the Vickers Boy Scout Band accompanying the M.R.T.B., while the C.O.T.C. were accompanied by their own pipe band.

In charge of the entire contingent was Lieut.-Colonel J. M. Morris, M.C., V.D., while the C.O.T.C. was under the command of Major O. B. Rexford, and Major A. T. Field, M.C., headed the Reserve Training Battalion.

Shortly after two o'clock, the M.R.T.B. which was drawn up on the stadium, moved south on University, followed by the C.O.T.C. which formed up inside the Armoury. Parading west on Sherbrooke, south on Mountain, then east on Dorchester and north to St. Catherine, the contingent divided at Phillips Square, the M.R.T.B. going to St. James United, while the C.O.T.C. moved west to Christ Church Cathedral.

Two Services Held.

The service at St. James was conducted by Major the Reverend George D. Kilpatrick, Chaplain of the C.O.T.C. and Principal of the United Theological College. Dr. Kilpatrick, in asking his hearers to follow the example of St. Paul, who "thanked God and took courage" when things seemed very black indeed, said that there were four main reasons why those fighting Hitler could be thankful.

The service at the Cathedral was in charge of the Very Reverend Dixon, Dean of Montreal. In his address Dean Dixon suggested that the younger generation as a whole had not kept faith with those who laid down their lives in the last war. The younger men had not kept themselves in a state of preparedness, he said, as those who made the (Continued on Page Four)

Nominations Called For

"Nominations are now being called for."

Yes once again election time rolls around, and this time elections are for the responsible posts of Faculty representatives to the Students Council and for the honorary society, the Scarlet Key.

The call for nominations appearing elsewhere in these pages is directed at YOU. It is a challenge to every student, male or female, in every faculty. Once again you have the chance to elect officers who will control student activities, your activities, for the next year, and it is up to you, it is your responsibility to see that the best candidates are nominated for the positions.

An apathy even greater than that of former years has been shown in the elections which were held earlier this year. Nominations were slow in coming in necessitating the postponement of elections, and in the end all too few nominations were received. The number who voted in these elections represents a pitifully low percentage of the total eligible voters.

It is no use for you to wait, and say that someone else will do the nominating. No, the responsibility falls squarely on your shoulders. If you know of somebody who you think would do well in office, get busy and nominate him. Remember nominations close on November 21st, so you just have ten days to go. Get Busy!

C.U.P.

Organized in 1938 for the purpose of more closely uniting the different Canadian universities through the exchange of news, the Canadian University Press today has a much greater role to fill in college life. Today the C.U.P. is the one remaining student link between universities.

With the cancellation of all intercollegiate competition athletic and otherwise that bond between Canadian colleges was broken. True all students in all universities are taking military training. That fact in itself serves to more closely knit together students across the continent. But it is through the medium of the wires of C.U.P. that students of one university learn of the problems confronting the students of the other universities.

At the time that the C.U.P. was organized under the aegis of the National Federation of Canadian University Students the role it was to play was to provide news stories of interest on all campuses which should be read on all campuses. It was hoped then that through this means the feeling of unity existing between students in different parts of the country would be strengthened.

Last year in addition to providing this news service, the Canadian University Press undertook successfully to provide weekly columns of general interest, editorials, etc.

This year the C.U.P. is maintaining its features of last year and has added several new columns. But this year columns will not be the main purpose of the C.U.P. Already in preparation across the continent are stories concerning the extent of military training and its effects on student life. Those stories which will be released once the full extent of the military training becomes evident should serve more than any other one thing to create a feeling of unity among all Canadian students—a unity so needed today.

"It is an illusion that youth is happy, an illusion of those who have lost it, but the young know they are wretched, for they are full of the truthless ideals, which have been instilled into them and each time they come into contact with the real, they are bruised and wounded."

—Somerset Maugham.

MUSIC NOTES

McGill String Quartet in Chamber Series.

The Montreal Festivals, sponsors of the June series featuring Les Concerts Symphoniques in works of the sacred choral and symphonic repertoire have announced a series of chamber music concerts presenting the McGill String Quartet. Six concerts will be given in this series at each of which a different guest artist will appear with the Quartet. The entire series will be played in the Prince of Wales Salon at the Windsor Hotel.

At the first of these concerts, to be given November 22, Dean Douglas Clarke of McGill Conservatorium will play with the quartet. Dr. Clarke needs no introduction to Montreal audiences as a musician. He it was in 1930, having arrived in Canada only the year before to take up his duties at McGill, who first perceived the musical potentialities of the city. He founded the Montreal Orchestra, the first venture of its kind to succeed in the city. It has been followed by a considerable musical development, which might have been impossible without the Orchestra.

As a pianist, however, he is less widely known. Few of his Sunday afternoon audiences realize that before coming to Canada, he was well known in England as a concert soloist. He has played with the London String Quartet twice and with the Hart House once since coming to Montreal. He has worked a great deal with the McGill String Quartet, and will appear with them in the Brahms F minor Quintet.

The McGill String Quartet gave a series of recitals in Moyse Hall last winter and during the summer gave five very successful concerts at "The Music Barn" at Lake Manitou South. As its name would imply, this excellent quartet has strong McGill associations.

Mr. Alexander Brott, the first violinist, was born in Montreal. From the McGill Conservatory he won the coveted scholarship to the Institute of Musical Art in New York, where he continued his studies under Sascha Jacobson.

Mr. Edwin Sherrard, also a native Montrealer, took his B.Sc. at McGill, and although his heart was in music, which he continued to study, he practised the profession of mechanical engineering for ten years. As might have been expected, his love for music induced him to give up his career as an engineer. He went to New York and studied with Jacques Gordon, leader of the famous Gordon String Quartet, as well as with Emmanuel Zeplin of the Institute of Musical Art. Mr. Sherrard is home in Montreal now, and building himself a new career.

Mr. Stephen Kondacks, the viola player, is Greek by birth, but, with his parents, came to Toronto to live at a very early age. He and his family are all naturalized Canadians. He studied music at the Toronto Conservatory of Music where he won a scholarship to the Juilliard School of Music. He has lived in New York for a number of years, and there he and Alexander Brott played with the Musical Art Quartet.

Jean Belland, the cellist, now a Canadian citizen, was born in France, and received his musical education in Paris, where he became well-known as a concert soloist. He makes Montreal his home, and is at present on the teaching staff of the McGill Conservatorium.

A special reduction has been obtained for McGill students. Tickets for individual concerts are available at fifty cents and admission to the entire season at $2.50.

Concert-Causerie Tonight

Tonight at 8.30, the third in the series of Concerts-Causeries will be held at the Windsor Hotel. This series of recorded concerts and talks is designed to afford music-lovers an opportunity to hear analyses of the works to be played at the regular concerts of Les Concerts Symphoniques de Montreal. The leader of tonight's discussion will be Desire Defauw, the eminent Belgian conductor, who is to conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a part of this winter's season, and who will conduct the concert on Tuesday. The works to be played at that concert, and to be played and discussed tonight include Brahms' second Piano Concerto, Beethoven's "Egmont overture" and selections from Wagner.

McGill students are cordially invited to attend tonight's recorded concert and to meet M. Defauw. There is an admission charge of 25c.

The Film—In Review

"THE GREAT DICTATOR" AT THE ORPHEUM

United Artists picture produced, written and directed by Charles Chaplin. Musical score by Meredith Willson.

Characters: Hynkel, Dictator of Tomania. Charles Chaplin. Napaloni, Dictator of Bacteria. Jack Oakie. Schultz. Reginald Gardiner.

Garbitsch. Henry Daniell. Herring. Billy Gilbert. Madame Napaloni. Grace Hayle. Ambassador. Carter de Haven. A Jewish Barber. Charles Chaplin. Hannah. Paulette Goddard. Mr. Jaekel. Maurice Moscovitch. Mrs. Jaekel. Emma Dunn. Mr. Mann. Bernard Gorcey. Mr. Agar. Paul Weight.

Any attempt to evaluate Charlie Chaplin's latest opus, "The Great Dictator," implies a conscious effort on the part of the reviewer to forget completely the scores of comments that have been forced upon him by genuine critics and quasi-critics in newspaper columns from coast to coast. That we have attempted to do and we can't fall in line with an emphatic "disappointed"; on the other hand, we recommend "The Great Dictator" without the slightest compunction.

"The Dictator" is not the comic masterpiece that was "Modern Times"; its theme, loaded with tragic implications, is not enhanced by slapstick—even if it is the Chaplin variety. But it is in many ways a great and unique bit of work; for one thing Charlie talks—and forcefully too. It is less of a one-man show than his earlier films, this despite the fact that Chaplin is responsible for most of the script, the direction, the feature role and part of the musical score (significant use is made of Wagner's First Act Lohengrin Prelude). Paulette Goddard turns in an excellent performance that has both range and appeal. Maurice Moscovitch presents a penetrating study as Mr. Jaekel and the Garbitsch, Herring roles of Henry Daniell and Billy Gilbert are played with a beautifully broad sense of comedy. Jack Oakie as the Bacterian dictator Benigno Napaloni sketches a clever caricature of Il Duce.

Charlie Chaplin's mastery of pantomime is legendary. His complete coordination that extends to facial expression, carriage and eloquent gait is there. As the Jewish Barber, Chaplin is the same ludicrous figure that has elicited more laughter and tears from audiences than any on stage or screen. In the dual role of Dictator Adenoid Hynkel, Charlie has reconstructed Der Fuehrer in the more obvious and ridiculous aspects of his enigmatic nature. His dictator is a masterpiece, no question of that. You have the mad frenzies, the superhuman sense of undertaking, the inflated self-importance of Hitler. You have those epic addresses, hysterical in their intensity conveyed in a garbled, guttural mass of bombast. The picture abounds in brilliant comic scenes. We shall never forget Charlie's dispensing a routine shave to the headlong rhythms of Brahms' Fifth Hungarian Dance.

"The Great Dictator" closes on a pleading note of optimism. In it, Chaplin steps out of character. His message is brief and simply worded. Aesthetes will consider it a breach of form, but those words are too vital and too moving to be dismissed with a shrug of the highbrow shoulder. At least, that's how we see it.

Dance specialties by the Nicholas Brothers and Thomas and Catherine Dowling. Maybe we're crazy, but we feel that a motion picture should be more than just a series of pictures, however attractive, shown on a silver screen. A movie should enable a person to escape into it and become part of the picture for the duration of the film. A movie that does not do that is little more than a stereopticon on a large scale.

Into the latter class falls the Palace's latest tenant "Down Argentine Way," starring Betty Grable who out-oomphs the original oomph girl of the screen, Ann Sheridan, and Don Ameche who turns on the full power of his excellent set of dentures for the benefit of the feminine attendance. The star of the picture and chief attraction was Carmen Miranda, who danced and graced her way into the hearts of all who saw her.

Carmen Miranda, who had people standing in the aisles of her latest Broadway show, made a mediocre picture into a good one. She appeared only twice in the film each time leaving behind her remembrances of songs and dances done in a way never before equalled on the screen.

This bundle of personality deserves to be seen over and over again. Also showing at the Palace is a short, depicting the events of the past weeks in England and showing the work being done by civilians in the Battle of London. Quentin Roberts supplies the moderate commentary of the short "London Can Take It!"

CAPRA WEEK AT THE PRINCESS

The management of the Princess Theatre, having peered across the street and seen their competitor's feature this week, has apparently decided that the best way of competing with the artistry of today is to employ the masterpieces of yesterday. Consequently, they have summoned the fruit of Frank Capra's genius, and are featuring a different hit directed by this archdirector every day.

Your Health—Your Fitness

Appendicitis.

The appendix is a little blind alley organ which is tacked on to the beginning of the large intestine. Its use seems principally to plague mankind. Before the days of Joseph Lister and modern surgery many persons died of appendicitis and doctors were helpless to deal with it. If they operated nearly every patient died of blood poisoning and it was safer to let nature take its course and hope for a cure. They called it inflammation of the bowels in those days.

Joseph Lister was one of the first to appreciate the importance of Pasteur's discovery that living germs were often the cause of disease. He demonstrated that infection, which almost universally followed even the simplest operation, was caused by germs which got into the wound from dirty hands and dirty instruments. He developed a technique to exclude germs from an operative wound and so made operations like the removal of the appendix possible.

Strictly speaking no one should die of appendicitis now because early operation is safe and effective. Yet many people do die and Canada has one of the highest mortality rates from this disease. In 1938 nearly 1500 people died of appendicitis in Canada and an uncounted number of others suffered some disability from it.

The characteristic symptom of appendicitis is abdominal pain. Its location in the abdomen may be almost anywhere from the pit of the stomach to the flanks. It most commonly settles down to the right lower part of the abdomen which is right over the place where the appendix usually lies, but this is not the invariable rule.

The doctor must be the judge as to whether the pain is due to an attack of appendicitis or merely colic from some dietary indiscretion. Even he is hard put to it sometimes to make up his mind, for the appendix when diseased has a way of hiding or altering its symptoms. In cases of doubt the doctor may want another medical opinion.

Once a diagnosis of appendicitis is made the appendix should come out. It is true that a great many cases may cure themselves spontaneously, but there is no way of telling what the course of any case will be and the advantages of an early operation are so great as to outweigh any disadvantage of removing an appendix which might have cured itself. There is, too, a further point that even if one attack of appendicitis subsides another attack is very likely to occur.

The non-medical person should be very cautious of self-treatment in cases of abdominal pain. When the pain persists it is always wise to consult a physician. The taking of laxatives is a particularly dangerous practice and is thought by many to be responsible for many catastrophes which might have been avoided if laxatives had not been taken.

Appendicitis is not in the class of preventable diseases as yet, but the mortality from the disease could be greatly reduced if people made it a rule to seek medical advice whenever a pain in the abdomen persists more than a few hours.

What is the most difficult college subject?

Organic chemistry.

This is revealed in a study made by the Bureau of Educational Surveys, New York City.

The Bureau found that the use of college outlines and other supplementary aids to study was in direct proportion to difficulty in the subject experienced by the student, and that the number of students in organic chemistry using college outlines far exceeded that of any other course.

The subjects most baffling to students, in order of their difficulty, as revealed by the survey, are: Organic chemistry, statistics, physics, general psychology, inorganic chemistry, principles of economics, political science, general biology, history of the middle ages, history of Europe, American government and English literature.

New Club!

Editor, McGill Daily.

Sir:

I wish you would put a notice somewhere in your paper about the new student's society which we are planning to form here at McGill. It will be known as the Little Southeast Biddletown By the Creek Society. Membership in the club will be limited to Little Southeast Biddletown By the Creek students at McGill University, and will be organized for the purpose of encouraging L.S.B.B.C. students to complete their higher education at McGill, and to promote fellowship among students already at McGill.

Membership in the club will be restricted to students of McGill University hailing from Little Southeast Biddletown By the Creek, although honorary membership will be provided for Professors, and others who are interested in the club. The organizers expect to have prominent Little Southeast Biddletown By the Creekers address the club, and hope to hear in the near future L. L. Zamenhof, prominent author, Charley Smith, proprietor of Charley Smith's Dry Goods' Emporium, Step In and Look Around At No Obligation, Dr. MacMillan, and others. W. W. Tweebog, Med. 1, has designed a club pin which portrays the three mysterious martyrs hovering over the famous Candy Guillotine in Little Southeast Biddletown By the Creek.

Yours most truly,

WILLARD GITTLEMAN.

Yehudi Speaks

November 8, 1940.

Editor-in-Chief, McGill Daily.

Sir:

Be it, hereby, known to all my faithful readers that I, Yehudy, of "Yehoodities" fame, suffer no defect of my auditory appendices and, consequently, disclaim any possible allegiance to one "Yehudi, the little man who is there," who wrote a letter to the Editor yesterday, proposing the installation of an amplifier in Moyse Hall.

The latter Yehudi is nothing short of an impostor. There isn't room for two of us at McGill. Either he vanishes into thin air, whence he came, or I sue for misrepresentation.

Truly yours,

Yehudy (the genuine).

What's Going On?

Nov. 7, 1940.

McGill Daily:

Dear Sir,

For several years the Engineers at McGill have been criticized as being uncultured, boorish, illiterate and uncivilized. We can see no honest foundation for these criticisms, but, as we are broad-minded, we have attempted to remedy the faults.

Although it was not publicized, it is nevertheless a fact that for the past two years the sophomore engineers have dined their rivals peared at the meeting, determined to broaden our minds or die in the attempt.

The president welcomed us, "Even though," as he said, "You are only Engineers, and know nothing about psychology." The first intimation of unfriendliness was shown when the election of an executive was postponed, for no apparent reason.

A temporary halt in the meeting occurred when we were invited to retire to a larger class-room, where we could all be seated.

On reaching this room, the president issued certain statements, some about the female members of the society, which caused us all to blush. We were then requested to withdraw, we can't imagine why. Determined to the last man to accept.

THIRD ARMY DEFEAT

Bob Stronach Scores Decisive Touchdown for Navy

On Friday afternoon at Molson Stadium an exciting, and thrilling game was played between the powerful Navy and the fighting Army. At the end of the game it turned out that Navy were on the long end of a 7-6 count; and as those twenty odd tars trooped into the dressing room, weary and mud-clad, they knew that they had been in a rugby game.

Bob Stronach was the kingpin of the Navy boys accounting for all of his team's points: he booted two singles, and then, late in the third quarter crossed the line with the winning touchdown. Noseworthy was a standout for the losers.

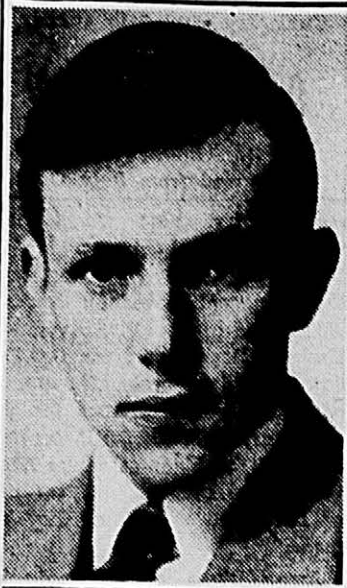

FUMBLES NUMEROUS.

It was a cold windy day, not ideal weather for a football game, and consequently many fumbles were incurred by both teams. One of these was costly to the Navy boys; for in the first quarter, after one of Paul Oumet's long spirals had been fumbled by a Navy back on his five yard line, Noseworthy plunged through for a touchdown. The convert, a pass from Bill Stronach to MacPherson, was completed. During the first half, Navy had several great chances to score, but a fighting Army team, smashing line backs and knocking down passes, were able to hold them scoreless.

NAVY ADVANCES.

In the second half Navy began to take the offensive once again, and it was only Army stubbornness and penalties that held them back. Fin-

sport ... shorts ... by god

For the first time in the history of the Dunlop every man that entered the event crossed the finish line. Commenting on this admirable achievement at the end of the race an official was heard to remark that it is that "stick to it" spirit that is so much needed these days.

Glenn Cowan showed great form Saturday to win his second consecutive Dunlop title and was given a great hand at the ceremonies after the race when he received a fine gold medal for his fine showing.

Coach Van Wagner was particularly pleased in the large turnout of harriers from McGill to compete as well as in their excellent showing. Of the forty men who entered the race eighteen were from McGill all of which received two points for their companies.

BERMAN PLACES THIRD

McGill Enters 19 Men in Annual Road Race Feature

Glenn Cowan carried McGill to victory in the annual five mile Dunlop road race on Saturday when he put on a spurt in the final yards of the strenuous grind to pass Jack Wahlburg and win his second consecutive Dunlop title.

Forty men answered the starter's gun in the twentieth running of this fall classic and for the first time in the history of the event every man, who entered the race, crossed the finish line. The race for first position was between Glenn Cowan and Frank Wahlburg all the way with Cowan having that extra energy at the finish which pays off.

COWAN'S TIME GOOD.

In winning his second consecutive Dunlop race Glenn Cowan cut off 13 seconds from his last year's winning time, crossing the finish line in 26 min. 25 secs. Frank Wahlburg who is the Dominion six mile champion finished just one second behind Cowan.

While Glenn Cowan stole the spotlight for McGill with his spectacular win the other McGill boys also showed up well at the finish with the Redmen placing first, third, fourth, and fifth to retain the team trophy and provincial championship.

BERMAN THIRD.

Joe Berman finished a strong third for McGill although his time was a minute and a half behind the winner. The other Redmen who finished in the first ten were Ross and Hyde both of the McGill first team who finished fourth and fifth respectively, Gibb who finished eighth and Lindsay who crossed the finish line in tenth spot.

McGill entered three teams of six men each placing teams in first, fourth, and seventh positions. Every McGill man who entered gained two points for his company, while

MCGILLICEMEN OPEN PRACTICE

A and C Companies Commence Practice Today

Practice Hours on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays

The McGill hockey season gets underway officially at the Forum today from 12:30 to 1:30 when A and C Companies will hold their initial practice for the forthcoming Intercompany league. These companies will be followed on Thursday at the same time by B and E companies, while D and F companies will round out the schedule of practices at the same time on Friday.

"A" Company will be piloted by Walter Johnson, outstanding goalie of last year's Intercollegiate team, while "C" Company will be coached by Grant Morrison. The honorary coaches have also been named for the other companies and training will commence in earnest this week for the forthcoming intercompany schedule which is expected to open around December 10.

COMPANIES REPRESENTED

Each Company of the M.R.T.B. will be represented by a team, with an extra team representing Macdonald College. No arrangements are being made for a team from the Independents, but rather, any students who wish to play and who come under this category will be associated with some company team.

Players will be provided with different coloured sweaters and stockings for the scheduled games and sticks may be secured at the gymnasium mat cost price. Despite the absence of Intercollegiate hockey at McGill this winter the icemen should enjoy a fine season and it is hoped that an increase in the number of men turning out will greet the inauguration of Intercompany hockey at McGill, as has occurred in every other sport thus far this year.

Sports Notices

BASKETBALL

There will be a practice in the gymnasium tomorrow afternoon at 2 p.m. for number 5 platoon. All those interested in playing should attend.

VOLLEYBALL

More men are needed for the number 5 platoon volleyball team. Will those interested please see the sports representative at the next parade.

Anyone interested in forming another hiking party and using the Ski house at St. Adele as a headquarters is asked to get in touch with Maryellen Rossiter, from whom all particulars are available.

BASKETBALL

Tomorrow afternoon the co-ed basketball practice will be held in the Montreal High School Gymnasium from 5-6 p.m. Everyone interested is urged to attend. Next week November 17th the practice will be held in the Sir Arthur Currie Memorial Gymnasium.

PING PONG

All who are interested in entering the annual Ping Pong Tourney in R.V.C. are asked to sign the list that has been posted.

FENCING

The Fencing Club will hold their next meeting this Friday in the Lower Gymnasium in R.V.C. at 4 p.m.

RUGGER MEN LOSE WESTMOUNT GAME

McGill Lose Decisive Match of Three Game Series

McGill English Rugby team lost on Saturday to Westmount 25-6. The game was played under poor conditions on the Lower Campus at 2:45 p.m. Both sides were completed by Air Force players.

Westmount were considerably heavier than McGill and although the Red Team fought back gamely they were unable to stem the tide. They were down 8-0 at half-time but scored two good tries in the second half. Walsh who scored one, was untiring and made many good rushes. Tyhurst continually made a lot of ground with good runs and kicks, and Stuart saved dangerous situations time and again. McGill was badly handicapped, however, having played so few games.

The line-ups were:

Basketball Teams to Start Games Today

With twelve platoons to line up at the gym this afternoon, this year's basketball league will swing off for another busy season. There are 35 teams entered in the league and they are subdivided into nine sections.

The games to be played off this afternoon at 5.10 are scheduled as follows: Platoons No. 11 vs. No. 16, Platoons No. 13 vs. No. 18 and Platoon No. 4 vs. Independent No. 5. At 6.00 (Continued on Page Four)

Six men constitute a volley ball team. Unlimited substitution will be allowed. Students can play only for the platoon to which they belong. Each platoon should appoint a volley ball manager at once, this man will keep a record of all players names and phone numbers and see to it that his platoon is represented by at least six men whenever it is scheduled to play.

Five points are given for each game played, and an additional five points are awarded for winning a game. 25 points are awarded to the league champs and 10 points to the runner-up. Points are also given on the final standings.

If a team forfeits a game to an opponent or if a platoon fails to field a team it shall have the number of points deducted that it would have received if the game had been won.

from M. I. T. in the annual International Intercollegiate spelling match.

Encouraged by these successes we have endeavored to explore the fields of culture even further, but up to the present, no possibility of satisfying our desire has presented itself.

In the Daily of Nov. 7, however, a notice appeared and it seemed that at least our chance for culture had come. The Psychological Society issued an invitation for all interested in psychology to attend the first meeting of the society. It was pointed out that the society was not a technical discussion group, but that everyone was welcome.

With this in mind, a small group of about seventy-five engineers acquired culture at any price, we stayed. We were then invited to form a committee of five to sit in with the society. As there were at least seventy-five Engineers, and only fifteen Artsmen present, this seemed unfair and undemocratic, therefore the invitation was politely but firmly rejected. Apparently forgetting the notice in the Daily, the president assured us that we were not interested in psychology, and once again requested us to vacate the premises. A general debate started over this statement, but time and military training forced adjournment of the meeting. Thus we left the Arts Building without attending our object.

Later in the day, one of the members made two charges: (1) The Engineers attempted to break up the meeting. (2) That we were afraid to come individually as we have inferiority complexes.

This member was unable to prove the first charge, which is, undoubtedly, the product of a mind diseased; (unquote). Fear was farthest from our minds, but our inferiority complexes suffered from the slight received.

A graduate in psychology agreed with us that we should have been not only allowed to stay, but welcomed. However, under the circumstances it is not unlikely that our search for broader education will terminate abruptly.

Incidentally it has been a custom for the plumbers to hold an annual debate with R.V.C.; we have tried hard to make this enterprise the success that it is. Another annual feature is the series of discussions held in the Engineering Building by the Mathematical Club. Artsmen often attend these meetings and at all times were courteously received by us. However, the response of the president of the Psychological Society to our presence was certainly not one of appreciation—a sad, sad mark of discourtesy and poor, yes, ungrateful hospitality on his part.

Since there were no logical objections to our presence, we thought that we would be received with at least a slight degree of civility. But, much to our surprise, the president intimated with menacing gestures and "non-theological" terms that our presence was not required. We feel that our status in the University has been humbled by the president's degrading remarks. We can no longer pass students of other faculties without hanging our heads in shame to comments, such as: "Those ghastly Engineers. Those uncouth blackguards. Those peeping toms."

By definition, a peeping-tom is one who sees things he shouldn't see. What we would like to know is—What did we interrupt this afternoon?—What does go on behind the closed doors of the Psychological Society?

We firmly believe that this Society should be investigated, its true purpose brought to light, so that even we Engineers know where we stand in the situation.

Frank Capra is undoubtedly one of the greatest directors the screen has produced. Since his arrival at the movie capital from his native Europe, he has given us one outstanding hit after another. Today, his name is synonymous with master craftsmanship, and his pictures are awaited with eager anticipation.

It is to Capra that credit goes for initiating what later developed into a long line of highly popular sophisticated comedies. "The Joy of Living," "The Awful Truth," "Topper," "Nothing Sacred" to mention but a few, all owe their origin to Capra's "It Happened One Night," which featured Clark Gable and Claudette Colbert's rendition of "The Man on the Flying Trapeze." Capra's other successes in the field of good comedy include "Lady for a Day," his first comedy, and "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," where Gary Cooper played the ingenious young man who was exposed to the vice, hypocrisy and latent selfishness of the big city, and very pitifully lost faith in human nature in general and Jean Arthur in particular. Anyone who saw this picture will probably still remember the famous "Pillaxed Sisters" even if the rest of the picture has gone the way of all entertainment.

But to mention Capra's comedies and omit "You Can't Take It With You" would be sheer heresy. This is one of the few pictures which, even after the sacrifice of the rather luxurious dialogue of the play upon the altar of the Hayes' Office, still succeeds in surpassing the original Broadway version.

As laudable as is Capra's handling of comedy, so has his direction of the more serious pictures received high paeans of praise. "Broadway Bill" proved popular among the critics when first shown. "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" was a great film and transformed James Stewart into an actor of the first order. And Capra's interpretation of James Hilton's renowned "Lost Horizon" was classical, and its construction, well-directed acting and beautiful photography all aided in winning for it the Academy Award for the year of its release.

"MOON OVER BURMA"

AT THE CAPITOL

Paramount picture produced by A. M. Botsford. Directed by Louis King. Screenplay by Frank Wead. W. P. Lipscomb and Harry Clark from a story by Wilson Collison.

Characters
Arla Dean.....Dorothy Lamour
Chuck Lane.....Robert Preston
Bill Gordon.....Preston Foster
Cynthia Harmon.....Doris Nolan
Arnold Renner, Albert Bassermann
Stephen Harmon, Frederick Worlock
Art Bryan.....Admiral Richardson
Sunshine.....Harry Locktree
Khuda.....Stanley Price

To one not usually impressed by the Lamour type of picture, "Moon Over Burma" came as a pleasant surprise. Minus her usual sardonic and with her blues singing less torrid than usual, Miss Lamour gives a solid performance as an oriental night-club singer who expects life in the jungles to be all peace and quietness but with dirty work among the foremen, the teak logging attempt of Preston Foster and Robert Preston in the Burma jungles are anything but conventional. However when the treachery is unmasked and a log jam spectacularly dynamited, everything ends happily as Lamour joins one Preston and marries another.

A second feature—"The Quarterback" is a somewhat far-fetched college story embodying the old story of twin roles in a new garb. Wayne Morris is kept on the hop playing first, an A-1 studious student and secondly a kind of superman football twin who keeps his better half at his studies. And the better half gets the dirt! It is all rather confusing but on the whole very acceptable comedy.

The bill is completed with an excellent short subject "London Can Take It" with Collier's London Correspondent Quentin Reynolds narrating and a newsreel.—R.S.

"NORTHWEST MOUNTED POLICE"

AT LOEW'S

The saga of the "Northwest Mounted Police" flashes across the screen for the third consecutive week, depicting in vivid colour the bravery with which these mounties maintained the law in frontier days. The movie brings forth the fight of men against death and disruption, and the steadfastness which marked every inch of their ultimate victory. Fifty "redecoats" are pitted against thousands of half-breeds, who know only one creed—kill for what you want. Yet the mounties triumph!

Besides depicting with interest the early pioneer days in Canada's great west, Cecil B. DeMille's film captures a great deal of the feel of the west itself. This is achieved through scene after scene of magnificent nature, which the technical colour medium brings to perfection. The cast is, on the whole, a good one, with particular laurels going to Paulette Goddard, who plays a primitive wildcat native girl, who leads Robert Preston, a young Mountie, astray, thus causing a slaughter of Mounted Police. Through her own duplicity, she causes the death of the man she loves in her own savage way.

Madeleine Carroll, who plays the part of a nurse, loved by both Preston Foster and Gary Cooper, Texas Ranger, stands out in bold relief with her gentility and refinement. She turns in a sincere performance. Gary Cooper is his own charming self. It was rather odd seeing him turn over the heroine in the last reel to Preston Foster. Gary doesn't often lose the girl.

On the whole, the picture is well done. DeMille lending his own voice to the opening scenes.

The added attractions complete the program, amongst which "London Can Take It" is especially worthy of mention.

Lloyd-Smith, one of McGill's hopefuls in Saturday's harrier meet arrived several minutes late for the start of the race but with undaunted courage he immediately peeled off his outer street clothes and started out after the pack who were disappearing over a distant hill. Although he was not entered officially in the race he did remarkably well and was clocked in 34 minutes and 43 seconds from the official start of the race. If he had started with the rest of the racers he may well have been well up with the leaders. Races are not won by such ifs however!

Since McGill won permanent possession of the Dunlop trophy last year no other award has been given for the winning team of this event and so this year McGill had to be content with the honour alone.

Last Friday's football game between the Army and Navy was just about the closest one you would care to see. As it was it was Navy's second straight win by the one point margin, and it stamps them as a real fighting team. The Air Force team are still frothing at the mouth over that 2-1 setback the sailors pinned on them last Wednesday, in which they lost on the last play of the contest.

Doug Kerr was back at his usual spot on the sidelines after a few days rest from that nasty spill he took last Wednesday when he got in the way of Dick Park, the Air Force bone crusher. His arm was still in a sling, but he managed to handle the Army team nevertheless.

Bob Stronach was perhaps the best man on the field. Besides scoring all his team's points, he tackled ferociously and more than held his own in the kicking department. His touchdown was really a gem as he picked a lateral out of the air, and scurried the goal line with no one near him.

It was just Army's luck that they didn't have Earl Smith in shape to throw some of his accurate forwards. They could have used some of them particularly in the last quarter.

Byington played a fine game at quarter for the winners and he seemed as cool as a veteran. He made some nice runbacks as he used his swivel hips to great advantage. Bill Stronach also handled his team well from the same position.

ally near the close of the third quarter their efforts were rewarded when, after Bob Stronach's powerful toe had accounted for two singles, the break came. Army made a costly fumble on her 28 yard line and then the Navy boys began to roll. Barclay, Robinson, MacGibbon, and Hall slashed their way through for two consecutive first downs, bringing the pigskin to Army's five yard line. Then on an extension play around the left end, Bob Stronach scored standing up. The convert was unsuccessful but it really didn't matter, for the Navy boys had the lead and they were powerful enough to hold it despite all Army efforts to score. In fact if it hadn't been for Army's line holding at the right times, the score might have been greater. On one particular play Hall broke loose from a line buck and ran fifty yards before he was hauled down by Bill Stronach, the last man between him and the goal line; but an unsuccessful drop kick by Norrish saved the day for Army. Although Stronach stood out for

A sum of money was laid aside for the expenses of the various clubs functioning, as parts of the main Undergraduate body and it was decided to grant the executive the money necessary for the trips to the Queen's and Toronto Engineering Societies.

The meeting adjourned after the misunderstanding between the executive and the undergraduate body was settled and the budget approved.

'As a Driven Leaf' Is Topic at Mac Circle
Members of the Maccabean Circle were addressed by Rabbi

S. Gershon Levi at a meeting that was held immediately after the Church Parade on Sunday afternoon. Rabbi Levi, who is the Educational Director of the Shear Hashomayim Synagogue, presented a review of Milton Steinberg's novel, "As a Driven Leaf."

After this address, the president of the Circle presented an outline of future meetings for the approval of the members. It was also announced that there would probably be a dance held on December 14.

The Avukah, a study group of the Circle, will hold a supper-meeting this Thursday evening and all members of the Circle are invited to attend.

One of our smarter reporters was out in the country this summer, and coming over a farmer milking his cow, thought he'd have a little fun. So very innocently he asked, "What are you doing to that cow?" The farmer looked our friend up and down and then replied, equally as innocent, "Just feeling her pulse."
